North Y closed today

The North Y intersection of North Main Street and North Kingshighway was closed this morning and workmen began breaking up the concrete road. A new intersection will be built just to the south of the present connection. Standing next to the crane is J. L. Troutt of Kennett and operating the machine is Dan Moit of Bertrand. The intersection will be closed for 10 days.

4 area residents die in plane crash

ST. LOUIS — Four Bootheel area residents died in the crash of an Ozark Air Line turboprop plane Monday night in St. Louis.

Among the 36 persons killed were John Edward Glass, 30, of 1929 Westwood, Cape Girardeau, a former resident of East Prairie; John A. Diebold, 62, and his wife Ruth Helena, 56, of Oran; and Mrs. Gerald Shifflett, 24, wife of the new manager of the Dutch Pantry Restaurant, who was in Sikeston looking for housing.

Mrs. Shifflett was returning to the family home in Richmond, Va., at the time of the crash.

A federal investigator said today it may be weeks before the cause of crash is known. Forty- four persons were aboard when the plane crashed at 5:47 p.m. in a residential area three miles short of the Lambert Airport.

William Hendricks, head of a National Transportation Safety Board team which organized to inspect the wreckage, said physical evidence will be examined for a week to 10 days.

A Federal Aviation Administration official said the plane's pilot radioed shortly before the crash in a violent thunderstorm he believed he was in a tornado and that the plane had been struck at least once by lightning.

Glass was born Oct. 23, 1942 in Bertrand to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Glass of East Prairie, who survive, and attended East Prairie High School where he was active in football, basketball and track. In 1966 he graduated from Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, where he also played football. On Nov. 23, 1966, he married Ann Rathert, who survives.

He was a football coach and physical education teacher at Althoff High School in Belleville, Ill., until 1967, when he began working for Ortho Pharmaceutical Co., a subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson Co., as a special training representative.

Also surviving are one brother, Leonard Glass of Edwardsville, Ill.; one sister, Mrs. Eugene Futch of Mitchell, Ill., and his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary Mass of Charleston.

The body will be moved to Ford and Sons Funeral Home in Cape Girardeau where friends may call Wednesday evening. Other arrangements are incomplete and will be announced later.

Diebold was born Jan. 14, 1911 in Kelso to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Diebold, who survive. On Oct. 23, 1934, he married Ruth Helena Thomas, who died in the same accident.

Diebold was a mechanic-foreman at Schneider Equipment Co. in Cape Girardeau.

Mrs. Diebold was born Jan. 3, 1917 in Randles to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thomas.

She was employed at the International Hat Co. factory in Oran.

Mr. and Mrs. Diebold are survived by one son, Eugene Diebold of Scott City; two daughters, Mrs. Merlin McConnell of Scott City and Mrs. Dick Brashear of Los Alamitos, Calif.; and 13 grandchildren.

Diebold is also survived by two brothers, Leon Diebold of Oran and Benjamin Diebold of Arab, La., and two sisters, Mrs. Helen Reischman of Oran and Mrs. Donald Tressler of St. Louis.

In addition to her children, Mrs. Diebold is survived by three brothers, Everett Thomas of Jerseyville, Ill., Cecil Thomas Wilcox, Ariz., and Hubbard Thomas of Fieldon, Ill.; five sisters, Mrs. Arlie Huckstet of Cape Girardeau, Mrs. William Cabler of Merridian, Miss., Mrs. Donald Sumner and Mrs. Lula London of Aldron, Ill., and Mrs. Lena Abbott of Jerseyville, Ill.

The bodies will be moved to the Amick- Burnett Funeral Home in Oran. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

No details were available on funeral arrangements for Mrs. Shifflett.

Edward Schueren, who lives in the suburban residential area where the plane hit and disintegrated three miles short of Lambert Airport, reported seeing two bolts of lightning just ahead of impact.

"It looked like one of them hit the plane," Schueren said. "It was flying low, and after the lightning struck the plane just rocked back and forth."

The National Weather Service said that although several reports of tornadoes were received about the same time it had no confirmation for any of the sightings.

"We have no evidence at this time that lightning was a factor in the crash," Hendricks said, "but I haven't yet talked to the plane's pilot."

Investigator teams removed the plane's flight recorder from the scene as rescue workers were taking the final bodies fron the wreckage. The FAA said tape recordings between the pilot, Arvid L. Linke, and the control tower in the airport would be studied in a search for clues to the crash.

Both wings were ripped from the plane as it plunged through trees, knocking down power lines and showering the area with debris. No injuries to persons on the ground were reported.

Robert Kakac new city manager of East Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE-- Robert L. Kakac, 32, of Highland, Ill., has been employed as city manager by the City Council, according to an announcement issued this morning by Mayor A. L. Weaver.

Kakac will assume his duties Aug. 1, filling the position left vacant by Gene B. Cullen who resigned June 15 to accept employment as water treatment plant supervisor at Poplar Bluff.

An army veteran, Kakac was employed in 1963 by First National Bank of Marine, Ill., leaving that position in 1967 to become the head of the bookkeeping department of First National Bank of Highland, Ill.

On July 1, 1970, he accepted the position of office manager for the City of Higland and following the resignation of Highland's city manager in December 1971, he handled many of the city manager's duties.

Kakac and his wife are the parents of one child and are members of the United Church of Christ.

4 injured in area traffic accidents

Four persons were injured in three traffic accidents Monday in the Bootheel area, the highway patrol reported today.

A three- car pile- up at 6:08 p.m. on Highway 60 a short distance east of the city limits of Poplar Bluff resulted in two injuries.

The accident occurred when a car driven east by William Dixon, 35, of Poplar Bluff Route Three stopped to make a left turn and was struck from behind by a car driven by Shirley Parker, 19, of Malden. The impact knocked the Dixon auto into the westbound lane, where it was struck by a pickup truck driven by Richard Graham, 20, of Patterson.

Injured were Christie Parker, 1, a passenger in the Parker auto, who received a head cut and Dixon, who suffered head and chest cuts. Both were taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Ray McMillion, 39, of Bloomfield Route Two received cuts and bruises of the ear at 11:40 p.m. one and one- half miles north of Puxico on Highway 51 when his car ran off the road through a fence and into a field. He also was taken to Doctors Hospital.

A one- car accident at 10:15 a.m. .3 mile south of Lutesville on Highway 51 resulted in injury to Linda Miller, 18, of Arnold.

Miss Miller suffered a neck injury and shock when her car ran off the road, struck a mail box, went down an embankment and hit a telephone pole.

She was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Board approves budget

CHARLESTON — The Charleston R-1 School District board of education met in special session Monday night and approved the proposed budget for the 1973-74 school year, listing total expenditures of $2,711,783, which represent an increase of $130,622 over last year.

The increase, according to Supt. Charles Rorex, is due to the increase in wages, the costs of instructional and operational supplies, the payment of a contract with Mechanical Systems, Inc. and the addition of one staff member.

The board also approved the reroofing of the Bertrand school and the dressing rooms of the Charleston High School field house and decided to temporarily repair the Anniston school roof. Materials are to be purchased from Joseph Reeves at an eight per cent discount. The school board will appropriate labor for the project.

The employment of Mike Back, curriculum coordinator for the North Pemiscot School District, as administrative assistant, and was approved, and Peggy McNeary was hired as elementary librarian. Thomas C. Graham was hired as elementary speech therapist for one year to replace Sheri Watson, presently on maternity leave, and Robert Cramer was hired as social studies insturctor.

The board went into executive session with attorney Danforth Joslyn to discuss a civil action suit filed against the board by Martha Lyons, former Hearnes Elementary School teacher.

Newsmen were permitted to attend the session on condition the information would not be published.

The suit, filed June 28, in the Federal District Court in Cape Girardeau against ex-superintendent Thomas Wells and the entire school board, asks that Mrs. Lyons be re-employed.

Mrs. Lyons received notice on April 12, 1972, while on maternity leave, that she would not be rehired for the 1972-73 school year due to a reduction in staff. Mrs. Lyons charges that she was not rehired because she "engaged in certain activities protected by the U.S. Constitution" and that certain persons, parents and teachers disagreed with desegregation and were resentful of a black teacher of white children.

Mrs. Lyons was an active member of the Charleston chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

County landfill discussed

BENTON — Mayors and concerned citizens of the county met Monday night with the Scott County Court to discuss the possibility of a sanitary landfill being established by the county for the use of trash haulers.

The meeting was called by the court following announcement by James Patrick, who has been operating a landfill south of Benton since June 18, saying that he was quitting business.

Patrick apparently halted the landfill operation due to lack of business.

Trash haulers say they did not patronize Patrick's business because of high prices.

Mayors and trash haulers present expressed approval of a county - operated landfill, saying they felt it was the county's responsibility.

Another disadvantage the haulers cited in regard to Patricks's landfill was its location in the hills which would make it difficult for fully loaded trucks to reach in bad weather.

First District Judge Eldon Ziegenhorn asked the haulers if they would support a court- owned landfill where they could dump trash at little charge. The haulers replied to the question by saying they would if it was closer and cheaper.

Presiding Judge Les Lankford said he thinks Scott County can support two sanitary landfills, and Ziegenhorn added that he thinks there should be a landfill closer to Sikeston and another for the north end of the county.

After reaching no definite decision, the mayors, trash haulers and judges decided to hold another meeting next Monday.

Specialty act named

Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo general chairman Larry Miller today announced the signing of Jerry Olson to provide the specialty act for this year's rodeo, Aug. 9-12.

Olson and his famous buffalo act are ranked among the top specialty acts in the nation.

Starring in Olson's comedy routine is Pat, his 18- year-old buffalo which weighs 1,600 pounds. One highlight of the act is where the big buffalo gets down over Jerry's prone body.

Olson, better known as "the big Swede", has been involved with rodeos since he was in junior high school. Today he is a highly- rated clown and bull- baiter and a tough hand in steer wrestling events.

Six fires reported

An electrical fire broke out at 9:08 a.m. today at the Charles Hill residence, 630 Lanning St.

Firemen extinguished the blaze which was confined to the attic.

Smoldering rubble at Barkett's Big Star Market kept firemen busy Monday night and today. The rubble, from a fire which destroyed the supermarket July 15, broke into flames at about 9 p.m. Monday, at 3:05 a.m. today and again at 9 a.m. today. Firemen have been called to the market several times in the last week to extinguish small fires breaking out in the rubble.

At 6:45 p.m. Monday, firemen were called to the Virginia Cross home at 831 Ruth St. when her car overheated. Firemen say there was no fire. At 2:05 p.m. Monday, firemen were called to 103 Handy and stood by a fallen utility line until workmen could repair it.

Unidentified body found

Qulin — The body of an unidentified white male in his 60s was found about 3:45 p.m. Monday in a drainage ditch one mile and one half miles north of Qulin by two motorcyclists who had stopped on a bridge.

According to the highway patrol, the man had apparently been beaten on the head and the body was floating on the water, indicating that it had been in the water several days. The body was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff for an autopsy.

The Butler County sheriff's department and the highway patrol are investigating.

THE EARHART LEGEND

Amelia Earhart would have been 75 years old on Tuesday, July 24. And she would have been the first woman to circumnavigate the world by airplane, if her daring attempt had not been cut short by tragedy so close to completion. Thirty-six years ago, on July 2, 1937, Earhart and her navigator, Fred J. Noonan, disappeared over the Pacific on the last leg of a journey that had started a month earlier in Miami.

Before she tried her luck on the last fateful mission, Amelia Earhart had an impressive list of "first woman" accomplishments under her belt and a world-wide audience of fans. In 1928, she became the first woman to cross the Atlantic in a plane and four years later she did it alone. In 1932 she was the first woman to make a nonstop flight across the United States and in 1935 to fly the Pacific from Hawaii to California.

The twin- engine Lockheed Electra carrying Noonan and Earhart was 2,500 miles from California when it vanished. "Gas is running low ... unable to reach you by radio ... we are circling but cannot see you," were the last words heard by trackers on Howland Island. Scores of ships and planes combed 200,000 square miles of ocean for 15 days, but they found nothing. For years the rumor persisted that the two were captured and executed by the Japanese.

A new twist to the Earhart mystery was added in 1970 by two former Air Force officers who wrote a book claiming that, as the title said, "Amelia Earhart Lives." They identified her as Mrs. Irene Bolam of New Jersey. Her flight had been part of an espionage mission for President Roosevelt, they said, and she was captured by the Japanese and thrown in a cell in the Imperial Palace in Toyko for the duration of World War II. In 1945, Emperor Hirohito secretly released her so the U. S. would let him remain in power. Mrs. Bolam held a news conference to declare that she was not Amelia Earhart and actually lived in Mineola, N.Y., during the war. The mystery and romance surrounding the disappearance of America's first great aviatrix survived intact.

The latest complaint from our kitchen management is that now it is onions that have gone sky high. The shortage in the Rio Grande Valley, Florida and other onion producing areas hasn't really affected the steep rise in price. The shortage is world wide and many growers are shipping onions to Europe. Yet we can recall in recent years when the price of onions was so low that growers left them in the fields.

Onions have little nutritive value outside of being appetizers. They make many dishes taste so much better that people eat more because of the onion seasoning and in this sense the onion does have certain indirect nutritive values. However, if there is one thing the average American does not need, it is to eat more.

Although television commercials have hammered away at mouthwashes to cure "bad breath" in American homes, it is possible that onion- breath may become a status symbol which could be quite a switch.

Local gardeners for some unaccountable reason have planted more onions, according to reports. It is not too late to put them out provided you can get hold of some sets or plants. They will become scarce also now that the price of onions is high.

Overheard at the coffee table: Forget about school and no one will be the wiser — especially you!

Hal Boyle

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP)— A gasoline shortage shouldn't bother my husband. He much prefers to drive without gas.

Possibly he nourishes the family car every now and then when I'm not around but I have never had the pleasure of motoring with him on a full tank.

Instead we travel for miles along uninhabited byways with the fuel gauge needle resting perilously near E and the red light that indicates the motor is thirsty flashing ominously off and on.

"I've got a quarter of a tank left," insists my husband. "It just looks empty from where you're sitting. We can drive for hours."

Maybe he can, but I can't- at least not without a tranquilizer. I get the owners manual out of the glove compartment and start calculating. If we should be getting 14 miles to the gallon- and I pessimistically assume that's a bit of an exageration- and the air conditioner is on, how far can we go on the teacup or so of gas we have left?

A few miles later, when I seem to detect wheezing, a shortness of breath and a desperate plea for a bit of no-knock from our game but going engine, I begin pointing out the sights along the road.

"See that nice filling station up ahead. Let's stop there," I urge.

"Wrong side of the road," grunts the chauffeur I hired for better or for worse.

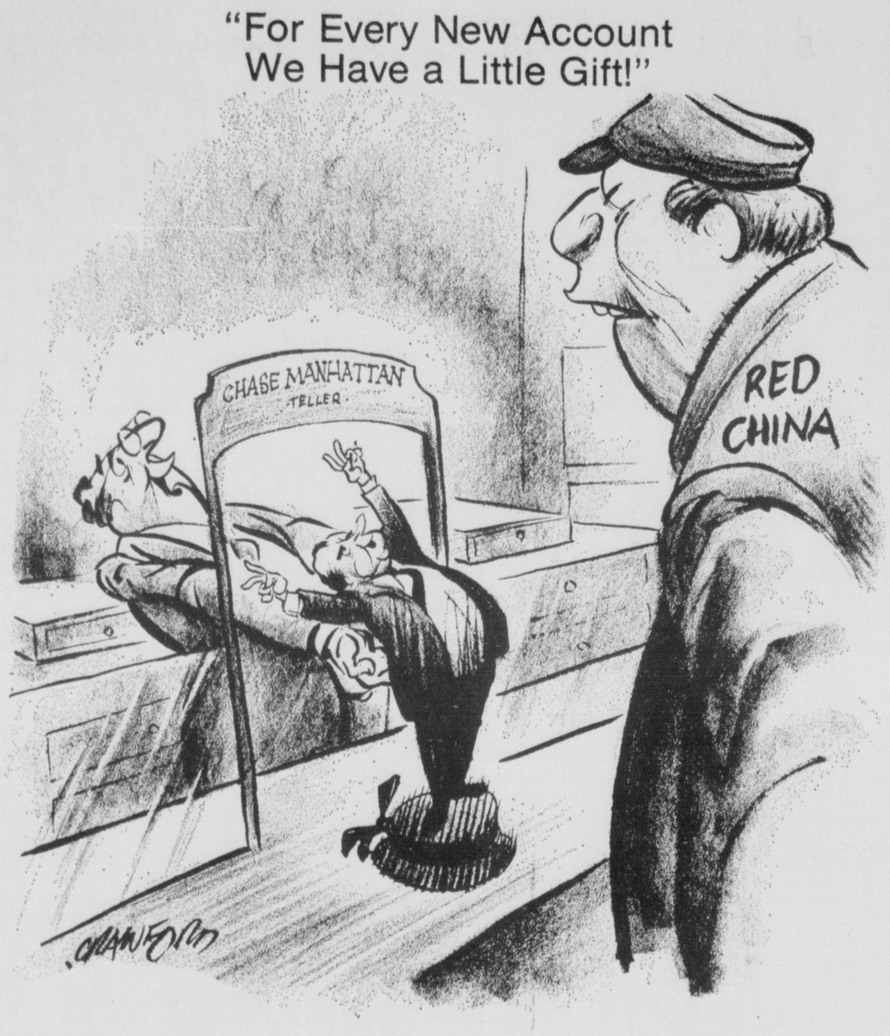

"That one gives trading stamps," I persist as we continue to pass pump after pump bulging with an automobile's life blood.

"That one's too expensive," mutters my spouse. "I don't like that brand," he says of another. "They won't take my credit card," he shrugs off a third.

In all fairness, I must report that we've never run out of gas when I've been along. But I have it on good authority that it happened once.

Apparently my husband didn't pay our son enough hush money to keep the incident quiet.

Hal Boyle is on vacation.

NEW CAR INSPECTION WOES

WITH AUTOMOBILES already backed up for blocks from the city inspection station dut to a shortage of inspectors recently, a new problem has arisen at the station.

Reports from motorists who had endured the delays indicated the number of cars being rejected for faulty wheel alignment was unusually high. Investigation showed the rejection rate had increased about 30 per cent after the installation of new alighment checking equipment Dec. 18.

The experience of one couple who had to run their car through the test five times, including two trips by professional mechanics who had made the requested wheel alighment, incidates that the standards being demanded at the station were faulty to say the least.

The station management says the inspection procedure and standards have been relazed since then and that the rejection rate now is down to about five per cent. Better instructions to motorists on how to submit their cars to the test also are being considered.

ALL THIS IS well and good, but the explanations being offered still don't seem to be good enough. The motorists who suffered through the station's experimental period and paid high prices for repairs that may not have been necessary are not going to feel happy about such explanations as have been given. And in addition there still is the pile-up in the lines facing those motorists who have been trying to get their cars inspected on time but who have been delayed by the many reappearances of those who had been rejected earlier.

It all seems to add up to some clumsy operation of the station at best.

CONSUMERS NEED TO KNOW

Would it surprise you to learn that there are now over 75 different government agencies that look after citizen rights? That's how many are listed in the U. S. Government's "Guide To Federal Consumer Services." So, it would seem that what we need is more education, not more legislation to solve consumer problems.

In fact, Max Dernerf, executive vice president and general counsel of the American Industrial Bankers Association, says, "Every time a new law is passed, somebody, somewhere loses something. Everytime the government assumes control over anything or anyone, it costs somebody something. It ought to be obvious to all, that in the end, the loser and the payer is the consumer."

It would be a shame if government regulatory agencies and standard- setting officials were to make all our shopping decisions. Manufacturing innovations would certainly end, and so would our wide choice of goods.

Just consider that a great many things consumer families now save for and buy were either not available 20 years ago or were beyond the reach of most budgets. For example, according to the Biddle Survey, recent records of spending (in annual rates) show that since 1970 the public spent 19 per cent more on housing, 20 per cent more on clothing and shoes, 22.8 per cent more on furniture and household equipment, and 47 per cent more on automobiles and parts.

That's a pretty good measure of high employment and consumer affluence. In spite of imperfections, our system of free choice in the marketplace is still the best way to protect the real interests of the consumer.

COLLISION COURSE

Environmental preservation measures and rising public demand for goods and services are on what might be termed a collision course. Somewhere along the line the more extreme protection measures face a compromise with reality, or people in many regions of the country will see the environment threatened by shortages of necessities. A federal ruling, for example, now forbids discharging any fluid into Lake Michigan that would raise the temperature of the water more than one degree Fahrenheit at the point of discharge. This means that industries and municipalities in the populous Great Lakes Region may find themselves in violation of federal authority unless they can meet new and arbitrary standards.

The collision issue is dramatically apparent in two news stories. One tells of the threat of low voltage and blackouts that threaten large areas of the East, as a consequence of dwindling electric energy reserves. The other story describes how the government is cracking down on alleged violations of environmental standards by power companies. The latter notes the new standards that are to be applied to the Great Lakes Region. It fails to mention that seven power plants, either under construction or planned, are involved. The head of a major electric company in commenting on the ruling declares the action "... is not only arbitrary and ill- advised, but would be extravagantly wasteful of the economic resources of the region. It would impose an enormous financial burden on municipalities and industries bordering on Lake Michigan -- including utilities -- and would require substantial increases in the cost of goods and services with no corresponding economic benefits to the public."

Environmental preservation is not a one- sided black and white affair. Like everything else in nature, it is a matter of achieving a balance -- a balance between environmental needs and irrevocable human requirements.

OUR BEST HOPE

Several months ago, President Nixon delivered a message to Congress on energy. In that message, he stated, "A sufficient supply of clean energy is essential if we are to sustain healthy economic growth and improve the quality of our national life ... Our best hope today for meeting the nation's growing demand for economical, clean energy lies with the fast-breeder reactor."

What is a fast- breeder reactor? And, why did the President choose to mention it specifically in connection with the energy picture? The chairman of the Edison Electric Institute has answered these questions and goes on to tell what the investor - owned electric industry is doing to forward " ... Our best hope ..." for energy tomorrow. He describes the fast breeder as an advanced nuclear power reactor which utilizes plutonium as fuel. "The breeder", he says, "will use uranium about 30 times more efficiently than the present water reactors. As a practical matter, there is enough uranium to supply our needs for 40 years without the reactor, but with it we will have enough to last for several centuries."

The Institute official reports that investor - owned electric utility companies have, to date, pledged financial support of approximately $180 million toward development and construction of a fast-breeder reactor demonstration plant. It is expected that the investor- owned segment of the electric industry will contribute approximately $250 million to a project that will open the way to meeting future energy needs in a manner that no one could have foretold a few years ago.

NO PROFIT IN RED DEALS

Dealing with communists proves profitless every time some western businessman thinks he has a new market among "customers" behind the iron curtain. U. S. businessmen should have learned that lesson back in the Twenties when U. S. firms did so much to build plants and production for the communist regime of Lenin and Stalin. Good workers, taxpayers and patriotic citizens need to remind business management at every opportunity that there is no profit in deals with Reds.

The example of the Italian auto maker, Giovanni Agnelli of Fiat, can be recited, along with our wheat deal, to help convince U. S. business and government of the futility of dealing with Reds. Fiat built a plant to produce Fiat autos in Russia. The Italians expected to make money on the deal, but ran into $100 million in "unexpected" expenses because of Russian inefficiency and bureaucracy; now the Italians will be lucky to break even.

The damage done to U. S. consumers by the wheat deal with Russia deserves a thorough investigation in great depth. We have only begun to pay the costs of that wheat deal. We are paying in dollars and, worse, in shortages of wheat, feed grains, meat, poultry, eggs and milk, among other essentials.

We are paying in taxes for subsidies, most of which benefitted the communist dictators more than anyone else; we are paying in inflation and in devaluation of the dollar; we are paying in damage to citizens of non- communist nations who have formerly paid cash for our farm products and now have been cut off. The lesson is clear: there is no advantage in dealing with Reds except to benefit communist dictators. HLH

Saving Your Future:

Senate Pushing To Protect $200 Billion Worth of Private Pension Funds

WASHINGTON--- I can still hear the late French comedian Maurice Chevalier retort during an interview: "You ask me how does it feel to be 77? I ask you, do I have any alternative?"

No. But at least he did it in comfort--- and security. And since most of the world is made up of the people "out front" and not on stage, the drive now is to provide real security for the multitudes as well as the stars.

Pensions are the answer. And pensions need security. That's the key to an overlooked battle deep in the U. S. Senate--- security of private pension funds--- some $200 billion worth, the greatest source of private loan and investment capital in the nation.

Many funds are mismanaged. Some are looted. Some are a built- in living for trustees, their relatives, lawyers and real estate partners.

Many function but simply don't have the cash for the pensions soon due to workers covered for years. As the unions drive for lower and lower retirement schedules, as the campaigns for retirement of workers in their 40s and 50s---- often at half- pay or at $150 to $200 a week--- intensify, many funds are becoming shaky.

And what about half the nation's work force which is under 30 years of age? It's pension- conscious, all right. But let it not be as Disraeli said, "Youth is a blunder; manhood a struggle; old age a regret."

What guarantees do today's younger workers have that those gold dust pensions of which they dream won't be more dust than gold--- as was the case in the old Studebaker company or in other bankrupt pension funds--- when today's youth is tomorrow's graybeard?

Thus in the next few weeks the U. S. Senate (one of the Watergate committee's subsidiaries, judging from the coverage) will attempt to develop a pension bill to prevent today's youth from becoming tomorrow's impoverished aging regret.

It will be costly. There is one move, for example, which would take millions of dollars annually. And that is to have the government reinsure these private pension funds. This would be similar to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., the home mortgate loan guarantees and the insurance which covers stockholders when their brokerage houses go bankrupt or are looted into insolvency.

And because there is so much gimmickry among so many trustees and directors, one section of one pension bill would give the Secretary of Labor the power to go in and clean up malfeasance or racketeering. He would have the power to remove the trustees and name new controllers. There would be the power to rip out the rot.

And there would be strict rules on fiduciary relations, conflicts of interest, and on what the British so delightfully call "hanky- panky"--- the intricate buying and selling of corporations, the paying of finders fees to those who can get to the trustees and obtain multi- million dollar loans.

There will be regulations to make certain that no fund has become too heavy with unfunded workers' pension obligations. For example: the gigantic Teamsters Chicago-based Central States, Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension Plan fund now is worth about $1.5 billion. The money is paid in by the truck fleet operators. It is jointly administered. It has something called "past service liability" of $2.2 billion. This means that the fund is obligated to pay older Teamsters as they retire some $2.2 billion more than is in the central kitty.

In other words, the Central States fund, at the time of the report, allegedly had $1.5 billion on hand but had obligations to the rank and file of $3.7 billion. So it counts on its investments being solid, its cash from from employers going uninterrupted and its loans being repaid. Thus it pays the retiring teamsters out of incoming cash.

But what if something goes wrong? What if there is a depression? What if the investments are bad?

At this moment this Central States fund is being investigated by a quiet task force made up of an Internal Revenue Service team and lawyers from the little- known Justice Dept. management-labor unit, an effective, if unsung, force. They are preparing material for two grand juries. One in Washington. Another in the Midwest.

The final Senate pension bill will, of course, have scores of other complexities in it: such as giving the worker rights to part of his pension after a certain period, say eight years. Vesting, they call it. Or giving the worker the right of "portability"--- carrying the pension time and credits from one firm to another when shifting jobs.

As the young dean of this pension and actuarial industry, Martin Segal, says, "It will be enormously costly. You get nothing in this pension and welfare field without paying for it. There will be tougher, costlier negotiations across the labor- management bargaining table in the future. The pension law will have a profound effect on reshaping the whole private pension system in the U. S. There will be many new beneift rights for workers who now don't have them. The rights, for example, to pensions much sooner than is now in effect. But it will be costly."

Certainly. But not more costly than the heartbreak of workers who find they've been had and they have no pension security--- and old age is a regret and not a comfort. And what of the younger worker who discovers the pension he'd counted on in his late 40s to get him into the double pension era by retiring into a second job--- and also discovers there really never has been a viable pension waiting for him or her?

So watch the U. S. Senate these coming weeks. Old Sam Ervin visits it occasionally too.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

G. Gordon Liddy:

Wierdest Waterbugger

WASHINGTON-- G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, the lead pipe men for the White House "plumbers," broke into the office of a Los Angeles psychiatrist to steal information for a psychological profile of Daniel Ellsberg. President Nixon would have been better served if he had sought psychological profiles of Liddy and Hunt.

Although it is too late to benefit the President, we have tried to gather the jigsaw pieces which might enable a professional analyst to put together a psychological profile, first of all, of Liddy.

Perhaps the most fascinating insight into his psyche is provided by an incident on January 6, 1971. He attended a private showing of a classic Nazi propaganda film at the National Archives with Assistant Attorney General Robert Mardian's anti-subversive squad.

In the most dramatic scene, swirling clouds fill the heavens, and Adolf Hitler comes forth in an airplane like a Teutonic God to save Germany.

Liddy was enraptured. "It left him almost in a state of levitation," one witness told us. Another witness agreed Liddy was excited by the Hitler film but insisted this wasn't a manifestation of latent Nazi tendencies. He described Liddy, rather, as a Germanophile, who was raised in a German- American community, speaks German and is fascinated with all things German.

VIOLENT MAN: Those who know Liddy agree he is obsessed with violence. He has a collection of firearms, including a postol that can fire a lethal pellet under water. Shortly before the Watergate break- in, he tried to purchase a small arsenal of hand guns from a Virginia dealer. On another occasion, he placed a brace of pistols on his table before receiving a delegation of angry neighbors.

One afternoon, his superior at the President's campaign committee, Jeb Magruder, complained about one of the men on the White House "enemies" list. "He is giving us a problem," said Magruder, mumbling something about "getting rid" of him.

Liddy was agitated when he strode from the office a few minutes later and encountered Magruder's administrative assistant, Robert Reisner. "I've been ordered to kill him," said Liddy grimly, naming the prominent victim.

Reisnger ran to Magruder, and together they explained to Liddy that he had been given no such order. Any suggestion about murder, they explained, was merely a figure of speech. "Where I come from," retorted Liddy, "that's a rub- out."

Liddy didn't get along with Magruder who once grabbed his shoulder to restrain him. "The next time you lay a hand on me," said Liddy, "I'll kill you."

The wife of another Watergate figure was waiting for her husband at the campaign headquarters when Liddy approached her. He began chatting about the dangers facing women on Washington's streets. Liddy told her that for self-protection, she should always carry a sharpened pencil, which she could use like a stilleto.

"Be sure the eraser is in good condition," he warned. "It will protect the palm of your hand when you drive the pencil into an attacker's throat."

The woman quickly found her husband and told him of the bizarre conversation. He looked out his door, saw Liddy and explained: "Oh, that's just Gordon Liddy."

REST ROOM INCIDENT: When campaign treasurer Hugh Sloan set out to deposit $350,000 in cash contributions, he asked Liddy to accompany him to the bank. They both carried briefcases as they walked out the door. Sloan's was stuffed with cash; Liddy's carried a gas- operated pellet gun.

"Nobody's going to bother us," Liddy said. No one did.

After a visit to the bank, the men stopped for lunch. Suddenly, Liddy felt he had to make an urgent visit to the men's room. The gas pressure in the gun tended to build up, and the weapon might accidentally discharge, jeopardizing Liddy's foot. He solved the problem by firing the gun into a toilet.

To impress a girl in Detroit, Liddy held his hand over a burning candle until the flame severely seared through the flesh. He also passed out to girls in his office posters of himself standing by a police squad car with gun in hand.

These poses show Liddy, apparently, as he liked to see himself. "He was like the mid-mannered Clark Kent, who turned into Superman," said a close associate of Liddy's. "In the office, he was a mild-mannered lawyer who dreamed of being much more."

At times, Liddy tried to enact his dream. Once, while riding in a taxi, he spotted a street assault in progress. He sprang from the cab and scuffled with the assailant. But Liddy was not Superman. The attacker had accomplices who beat Liddy unmercifully.

Neighbors also recall the time he hid on his garage roof waiting for some youngsters who had been making noise outside his house. When they arrived, Liddy leaped off the garage like Superman upon the startled kids.

These incidents suggest that Liddy would make a more interesting psychological study than Daniel Ellsberg. The real question is how a man of Liddy's fantasies would up in the White House.

Footnote: We will present a psychological profile on Liddy's partner in crime, E. Howard Hunt, in a future column.

Reform urged in tax assessment procedures

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A study of property tax administration indicates taxpayers in the lowest income brackets bear the heaviest burden of disparities in assessment, according to an article in a periodical printed by the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City.

The article, appearing in the July-August "Monthly Review," concluded that "if the property tax is to be maintained as a major source of revenue for schools and local government units, reform of assessment procedures must assume a high priority."

The study, by Stephen F. LeRoy of the bank's staff, found that "assessment of houses selling in the higher price brackets is relatively efficient."

However, "for houses selling for less than $10,000 ... the verdict is less favorable — a disproportionate number of such houses are significantly overassessed or underassessed. On average, houses in the lowest price category are overassessed relative to those in the higher brackets, implying that the burden of assessment disparities falls most heavily on taxpayers in the lowest income categories."

The study focused on Kansas City, but LeRoy said "the description of the practice and problems of tax assessment applies to most jurisdictions throughout the country."

118 youth attend Camp

A total of 118 4-H members and five adults attended the Scott-Stoddard 4-H Camp July 15-18 at the Missouri 4-H Camp on Lake Wappapello.

The 4-H Camp is part of the extension youth program conducted by the University of Missouri Extension Division under the coordination and supervision of Dee Goedeke, area youth agent.

Three areas were selected for camper education, citizenship education, environmental education and leisure education.

In the citizenship education area, campers participated in a vespers service, flag ceremonies and other activities.

Included in the environmental education program were a nature trek, a blackberry hunt contest and an environmental scavenger hunt.

The leisure education included instruction in canoeing, archery, some swimming and other sport activities.

Other camp activities included: Swimming, sports, movies and cartoons, a campfire, a box hockey tournament, a skit night, a dance and an evening swim.

Each camper made a terrarium using plants and moss obtained from the camp site. Rocks and driftwood pieces were added to the terrariums which were made in jars the campers had brought from home.

Assisting with the program were 11 youth counselors. Serving as counselors were Carl Leonard, Mark Ahlvin, Kim DeCota, Angela Cooper and Jim Huff of Sikeston; Eddie Ressel, Deaonna Ressel, Luann Smith, Judy Staebel and Carol Weber of Kelso; and Randy Russell of Dexter.

Special youth program assistants were Joe Myers, Lew Polivick and Stan Polivick in recreational activities; Peter Myers in environmental activities; and Dave Ahlvin in campfire activities. All are from Sikeston.

Adults attending camp were: Mrs. Betty Ressel, camp nurse and adult counselor; Miss Catherine Bader, adult counselor; Mrs. Elaine Malcolm and Mrs. Brenda Crow, University of Missouri Extension Division education assistants- youth; and Goedeke, who served as camp director and program coordinator.

Campers and clubs represented were:

Rodeo ushers needed

Ushers are needed for the Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo Aug. 9- 12, according to an announcement released today by rodeo general chairman Larry W. Miller.

Performance times of the rodeo are at 8 p.m. Aug. 9, 10 and 11 and 2 p.m. on Aug. 12.

Anyone interested in serving as an usher should contact Doris Stallings by phone at 471- 1868; Hazeel Williams, 471- 8362; or Betty McGill, 471- 3678, and indicate which performance they wish to usher.

A meeting will be held Aug. 7 at 7:30 p.m. on the rodeo grounds for all ushers to receive instructions.

Advance tickets to go on sale

NEW MADRID — Sale of advance children's tickets to the Carson and Barnes, five-ring, wild animal circus scheduled Sept. 19 will open Wednesday, according to Gene Clayton, Kiwanis Club publicity chairman.

Clayton said a Carson and Barnes sales representative will offer blocks of advance tickets at reduced prices in a telephone sales service to businessmen and merchants in Lilbourn, Portageville, Sikeston, Risco, Parma, Charleston and East Prairie as well as New Madrid.

The New Madrid Kiwanis Club, sponsoring organization for staging the giant circus under the world's largest bigtop, will receive up to 50 per cent of the advance tickets receipts, according to Clayton who said the club is requesting all area businesses to participate in this promotion.

Circus performances featuring scores of imported and domestic animals, including performing elephants, and other acts are booked at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. on the New Madrid High School grounds on Highway 61.

Proceeds from the project, which is the largest the club has ever undertaken, are earmarked for community betterment.

10 treated

Ten accident patients were treated Monday in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Frank Cayson, 33, East Prairie, fractured right arm in fall; Don Stanberry, 19, Morehouse, bitten by snake; Marilyn Pretti, 25, Sikeston, cut lower lip, hit by golf club; Susan Womack, 12, St. Louis, cut right leg on bicycle chain; Mitchell Crawford, 2, Sikeston, caught fish bone in throat.

Will Moore, 29, Benton Harbor, Mich., received second degree burns when radiator blew up; Irene Young, 48, Sikeston,injured right hand at work; John Calvin, 53, Sikeston, bruised and punctured left leg, tractor rolled back, pinning leg; Jimmy Canady, 1, Sikeston, cut back in fall on glass; and Charlie Barnett, 8, Fort Scott, Kan., cut right foot on glass.

2 arrests

A 15- year- old Scott City youth has been arrested for the theft of a battery from a pickup truck belonging to Larry Drake 115 Roberts, police said today.

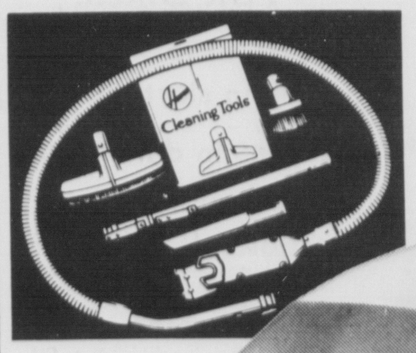

The theft occurred July 18 or 19 while the truck was parked at Drake's home. The battery was recovered, police said.

One other arrest announced today cited William Sherer, 239 Daniel, for driving while intoxicated.

'Astrology nuts' make office staff miserable

Dear Ann Landers: There's one subject you never mention in your column. I suspect you are afraid of irritating a few million idiots. I am talking about astrology. A couple of nuts in this office who consider themselves highly intelligent wouldn't dream of making a move without consulting their "charts."

One is an Aries who believes her destiny is to be a world leader. She couldn't lead a moth to a flame. In fact, she's a troublemaker who has managed to make life so miserable for three good employes here that they quit. I might be next.

The other is a Libra who insists that her sign has placed her on a higher ethical plane than anyone in the office. I've watched her operate and she could engrave her code of ethics on the knee of a bee and still have room for the Gettysburg Address.

I hope you will put the knock on these Phony Balonies and express your views on astrology.--- Sick Of Them

Dear S.O.T.: I know very little about astrology but I do know several people who are a far cry from Phony Balonies and are horoscope- hooked. My personal inclination as far as astrology is concerned parallels that of Shakespeare's Cassius, who said, "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves, that we are underlings."

Dear Ann Landers: My dear brother Kenny was a factory representative. He knew all kinds of people. A few weeks ago Kenny dropped dead of a heart attack.

After the services, a crowd of people came to my sister- in-law's house. She took Kenny's death very hard and was under heavy sedation. A well- dressed man sought me out when he couldn't find her. He told me that Kenny owned him $900 from two poker games. The message was clear--- he expects the family to pay the money. When I asked if he had anything in writing he said, "The guy's word was good as gold. He always paid me before." The man left his card and said he'd be in touch in two weeks.

A few days later I told my sister- in- law about it. She said she never knew Kenny played poker for such high stakes but if he owes the money she'll manage to pay it somehow. My husband told her, "It's a racket. Forget it." I said I would write to Ann Landers. Answer, please.--- Tulsa

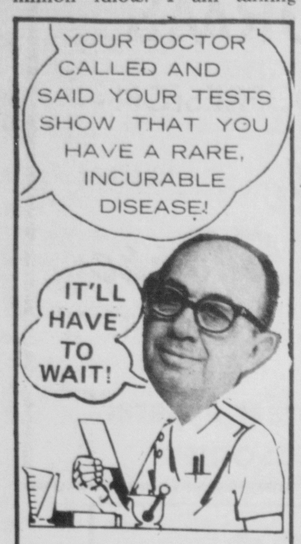

Dear T.: Since the man had nothing in writing and your sister- in- law never saw him before, I'd say your husband gave her the right advice.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a good friend who has a habit that drives me nuts. Nell is a darling person and knows everything that goes on in town. We talk on the phone every day. My complaint is this: I can't recall a single conversation when she didn't say, "Hold on a minute---" then she leaves the phone. Her "minute" can be anything from 20 seconds to 20 minutes.

One day I timed it. When I called her back, half an hour later, her line was busy. The next morning she phoned to apologize. She went to answer the doorbell and forgot I was waiting.

This morning Nell gave me the "hold on a minute" routine again and I waited seven minutes by the clock. (Her dog has to go out.) Any suggestions?--- Slow Burn

Dear Slow: The next time Nell says, "Hold on a minute," hang up. When she calls back tell her exactly what you told me.

Mary Halter, Donald Johnson will marry

BENTON — Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Halter announce the engagement of their daughter Mary Ann to Donald Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Johnson of Arnold.

The birde - elect is a 1969 graduate of Kelly High School and May graduate of Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau with a bachelor of science degree in home economics.

Johnson also graduated in May from the university with a B.S. degree in social studies education.

They plan to be married Aug. 24.

Sikeston girl spends week at Whitman AFB

WHITEMAN AFB, Mo. — Cadet Sgt. Elizabeth Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Miller of 223 West Gladys, Sikeston, recently received a taste of military life at the Missouri Wing Civil Air Patrol encampment at Whiteman Air Force Base near Knob Noster.

Elizabeth, a student at Sikeston High School, represented the Sikeston composite squadron at the encampment which opened Saturday, July 14. She has been a member of the Civil Air Patrol for one and a half years.

Each day, Elizabeth received drill instruction from Air Force Sgt. Richard E. Mathews and underwent inspection of quarters as one of 17 female and 47 male cadets of the Civil Air Patrol, auxiliary of the Air Force. Her meals were taken in the Airmen's Dining Hall, where more than ample food was provided for the tired, hungry cadets.

Also provided for the young people to further their knowledge of the Air Force structure were tours of the security police, helicopter operations and maintenance and communications facilities and visits to missile sites.

Led by the fife and drum corps Thursday, July 20, the cadets marched from the base's main gate past the base headquarters and to the Airmen's Dining Hall, approximately a half mile.

Saturday, July 21, Miss Miller and the other cadets marched in a parade and review before Col. John O'Gara, North Central Region CAP commander, and the encampment commander, Lt. Col. Nicholas J. Knutz.

Concluding the week- long activities was a Saturday evening banquet in the Student Union at Central Missouri State University in Warrensburg. Miss Miller was quartered at Fitzgerald Hall on the university campus with other female cadets.

The encampment is held to increase the young people's knowledge of the Air Force and to assist them in the national CAP aerospace program.

Area homemakers attend conference

COLUMBIA — Mrs. Orin Hunt of Sikeston Route Four, Mrs. R. Riley and Mrs. J. L. Deardorff of Dexter, Mrs. Donald L. Cain of Essex Route One and Mrs. Fred S. Backer of Bloomfield were among participants in the recent annual conference of the Missouri Extension Homemakers Association (MEHA). The organization has more than 22,000 members in 1,535 clubs in all Missouri counties.

The meeting, held recently in the Memorial Union at University of Missouri-Columbia, drew more than 300 persons to workshops on guest day.

Topics presented by UMC staff members and state and national women leaders included international learning, human understanding and grandparenting, the enlightened consumer, women in leadership, health concerns with new morality, responsibility of media in a democracy and volunteer talent.

Officers elected for the July 1973-75 term are: Mrs. Ervin Apprill of Higginsville, president; Mrs. H. H. Bock of Gordonville Route One, first vice president; Mrs. G. B. Hagerman of Wayland, president- elect; Mrs. L. H. Galen of Auxvasse, secretary; Mrs. Llody Graves of De Soto Route Three, treasurer; and editor of "Missouri Homemaker," Mrs. George Musterman of New Florence.

District representatives are: Mrs. Norman Powers of Windsor Route 1, Southwest; Mrs. Merrill Townley of Jefferson City Route Two, Northeast; Mrs. Fred Southard of Lebanon, south central; Mrs. Don Cain of Essex Route One, southeast; and Mrs. Alphonse Schewbach of Conception Junction, northwest.

Mrs. Bock was MEHA chairman for the conference, working with Ruth George, program coordinator; quality of living programs, University-wide extension.

"The public must be aware of threats to press freedom and media must be unswerving watchdogs for the public," Dr. Robert Knight said in a guest day workshop on responsibility of media in a democracy. The UMC associate professor of journalism led discussion on standards for journalists and responsibilities for the public.

"Health Concerns With New Morality," presented five community health problems: sex, changing life styles, communication patterns, drugs and aging. Suggestions were made for resources, kinds of community action and groups with which extension clubs might work. Dr. James Irvin, UMC associate chairman, community health and medical practice, led with graduate students leading smaller groups.

Communications experiences -- self description and description of others -- launched "Women in Leadership." Mrs. Apprill emphasized that leadership begins with the self, opening, stretching, reaching out, trying new experiences and relating to previous experiences. Assisting were Mrs. Martin Muchow of Sioux Falls, S. D., president of the National Extension Homemakers Council (NEHC), and Mrs. Walter Drees of Reynolds, N.D., NEHC central director.

In "Volunteer Your Talent," Dr. Eileen Lineberry, director, continuing education for women, UMC extension, and G. R. Westwood, instructor in social work, stressed readiness to meet needs of including youth and aging and personal satisfaction in volunteering.

A session on international learning was led by Mrs. Bernard Brown of Owensville, NEHC international chairman; former MEHA president, Mrs. Edward Dohrmann of Chesterfield Route One; and June Lamme of Chillicothe, continuing education programmer for Livingston County. Mrs. Lamme presented a sample club meeting -- complete with games, songs, refreshment ideas and library references -- featuring Australia, where the next triennial conference will be held for Associated Country Women of the World.

Communications experiences with each other and role- playing of a case study about a three-generation family occupied a group led by Dr. Arthur McArthur, associate professor of home economics in child and family development and extension specialist. The group viewed a film in the UMC extension "collage" series, "Grandparents and Children Need Each Other."

Nearly a hundred participants joined campus tours. One group saw the campus by bus and toured the new Hearnes Multipurpose Building. A walking tour covered the State Historical Society of Missouri, the Gwynn and Stanley Gallery home economics exhibits and the Environmental Learning Laboratory with miniature living plant and water systems similar to many familiar areas of Missouri and other states.

About 60 visited the weaving studio, "Alice's Wonderland," of Alice Mae Alexander, professor emeritus of family economics and management.

In a special opening feature on Guest Day, Dr. William "Mack" Jones used several plays by Shakespeare to illustrate dilemmas and courses of action open to modern women. Dr. Jones is a UMC professor of English.

Participants toured several campus facilities.

Officers discuss plans

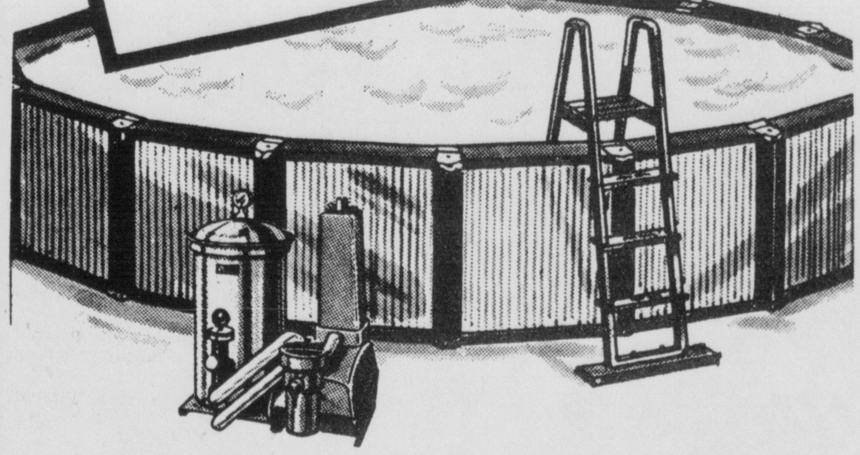

Janette Lathom, left, discusses plans for the Beta Sigma Phi Fall Fashion Show with Glenda Bridges show chairman, and Beverly Leonard, president of Delta Gamma chapter. The fashion show will be presented Aug. 6 at 8 p.m. in the American Legion building, and this year's theme is "A More Beautiful You in 1973". Tickets may be purchased from any member of Delta Gamma chapter.

Milburn honored nationally

Alan Milburn, a seven year student of the oriental art of self- defense techniques better known as Karate, received honorable mention recognition by the Professional Karate Magazine last week as one of the top 10 Karate fighters in the United States.

The mild mannered Sikeston high school Literature instructor, who has won numerous honors in the fast growing sport, has opened a Karate school here with training facilities located in the basement of Imperial Bowling Lanes.

Only two weeks ago, the second degree Black belt fighter, competed in a Karate tournament at Forest Park Community College in St. Louis against many of the nations top competitors, finishing second in his class. Over 1,000 entered the event.

Milburn, who began his study of the Oriental art at the age of 16, was inspirited to take up the study when a Brown belt Karate student planted a double sidekick to his face ..." Boy that really amazed me ... I knew then ... that was for me," Milburn explained.

The 1966 SHS grad has been a dedicated student of Karate since his initial lesson seven years ago, winning his coveted Black Belt in a surprising three year period. "I worked toward the Black belt status day and night," Milbourn noted.

Milburn has taught Karate in Cape Girardeau and Memphis. At Cape he teamed with nationally known, Lee Park, the holder of a third degree black belt in judo, a fifth degree black belt in karate and a sixth degree black belt in hapkido. Park also instructed Milburn.

A student starts out with a white belt and has to work for three or more years to climb the ladder to the black belt. "It takes six months to a year to attain the first belt," Milburn explained. The classes are white, yellow, green, blue, brown and black, with degrees advancing the black.

"You don't learn karate in three to six months," Milburn commented. "You must be dedicated like a boxer, get in shape and workout daily."

"What is it, though, that is the big lure?" we wanted to know.

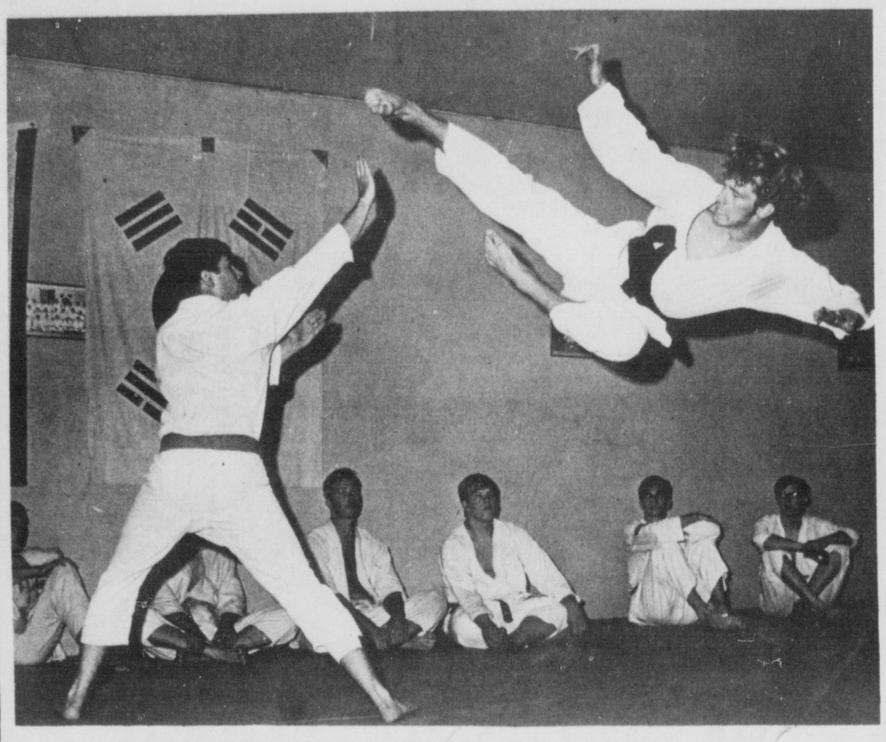

"There isn't one reason which takes care of everybody," Milburn noted. "In the case of women, the reason I think is obvious. Many women just want to find some way of protecting themselves. This has been perfect for them."

To an extent, too, it explains why some youngsters go in for it.

For most of these who take up the sport, though, there is the age- old reason of conditioning.

"For anyone who wants to learn karate to defend himself or herself," Milburn said, "it can be that. It builds up confidence in the individual. But in the actual competition, in a match, any attempt to hurt or maim an opponent takes points away from the competitor."

"That is part of self-discipline," Milburn noted. "You discipline yourself not to hurt an opponent. At the same time you have to discipline yourself to fight off fear. The instructors help by bringing you along in easy stages. It goes away."

Alan Milbourn, who holds a second degree black belt in karate, demonstrates a double side kick.

Musial league stars, aces named

All Stars and Aces of the Musial Little League will take part in the 9-10 year old Sikeston Invitational Tournament scheduled to start Monday. Dr. Larry Lester will be the manager of the Aces and Bill Moore will take on the duty for the All-Stars. The following boys were chosen from the various teams by coaches and managers.

ACES

ALL-STARS

Bert Perry, Mike Hurley, Tryon White, Ken Spitler, Cortez Smith, Kelvin Self, Scott McDowell, Robert Pollard, Steven Green, Mike Sherman, Stephen Rice, Stanley Long, Mark Moore, Steven Warfield, Jimmy Alford.

Nunnelee, P&D win

Cortez Smith pitched Nunnelee to a first round win in the Musial Little League City Tournament Monday night as he blanked Potlatch 11- 0. Little Paint and Drywall will continue in the tournament with an 8- 4 win over Rotary.

Nunnelee was on the scoreboard in the bottom of the first with five runs to their credit while Potlatch was caught standing still. Unable to shake off their troubles, Potlatch was still struggling in the following inning when Nunnelee came around to add three more runs to their lead. Smith was too tough to handle for Potlatch while being backed up by his hitters and Nunnelee coasted to an easy victory. Carnell was a strong point in Nunnelee's game as he was three- for- three at bat with one hit being a triple. The only other extra base hit came from Bickford which was a double. Branson had the loss.

Little scored consistently to stop Rotary from advancing in tourney play. Rotary was slow to start, not scoring until the third, and found themselves already fallen behind 4- 2. Little kept the edge on Rotary to take the game. Hitting power was provided by Little's Howard, Ferrell, Red and Porter who all had doubles. Porter had the win to his credit and Vaught suffered the loss.

Bob Ralph

Ralph to head State Babe Ruth

Bob Ralph, longtime Sikeston baseball supporter, will assume the Babe Ruth baseball state directorship Jan. 1, 1974, according to present director Don Jones of Jefferson City.

Ralph, who has been associated with Babe Ruth baseball since 1970 and has served in many different capacities for the organization, is presently the assistant state director.

In 1972 Ralph was honored by the Chaffee Boys League for outstanding service as he enrolled Chaffee in the Babe Ruth baseball program.

Jones is presently serving as the Midwest Regional director and will assume full duties at the same time Ralph takes over the state leadership.

Anderson out for NL win

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An undaunted Dick Williams and a determined Sparky Anderson reflect the intense mood of tonight's 44th All-Star baseball game at plush Royals Stadium.

Williams left a hospital bed after a recent appendectomy to lead the American League team while National League Manager Anderson vows: "I'm here for just one thing—to win."

The setting is particularly dramatic, considering that All-Star games in the past have been brushed off by some players as insignificant exhibitions.

But Anderson has expressed a fierce desire to beat the American League in the midsummer classic.

"I'll try to figure out what moves Williams will be making, and everybody on my staff will be ready to help out," says the Cincinnati Reds' manager.

A sellout crowd of more than 40,000 will be on hand at baseball's newest park while millions more watch the starstudded affair on national television (NBC). Game time is 8:30 p.m., EDT.

Anderson isn't taking this game lightly for a reason. He feels he has something to prove.

"I'd like to be on the winning side for a change," says Anderson, who has lost two World Series and was the losing manager in the 1971 All-Star Game at Detroit. "That's why I picked some of the ballplayers I picked. I wanted guys who could come off the bench and help me win.

Along with the managers, the players by have shown an uncommon competitive desire. Both third Baseman Ron Santo and shortstop Chris Speier were injured last week, but will be in the National League's starting lineup.

The American League's starting pitcher, Catfish Hunter of the Oakland A's, a 15-game winner, will face Rick Wise of the St. Louis Cardinals in an attempt to cut into the National League's 24-18 lead in the series which started back in 1933. There has been one tie in All-Star competition.

"It's a great honor for me," said Wise, an 11-game winner who was chosen over more illustrious names because he had the most rest.

Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris will lead off for the American League, followed by left-handed hitter Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, the team's second baseman. First baseman John Mayberry of the Kansas City Royals and rightfielder Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's, the 3-4 hitters, are both left-handed.

After centerfielder Amos Otis of the Royals, the AL's No.5 hitter, comes lefty Bobby Murcer of the New York Yankees. He'll play left field.

Catcher Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox will be No.7 in the batting order, followed by third baseman Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles and Hunter.

Left fielder Pete Rose and second baseman Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds will bat 1-2 in the National League order. Centerfielder Cesar Cedeno of the Houston Astros, first baseman Henry Aaron and right fielder Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs will hit 3-4-5 for the Nationals.

The rest of the order includes Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, Santo, Speier and Wise.

NL holds advantage

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Baseball All-Star notebook:

The National League has won nine of the last 10 all star games. The only American League victory over that stretch came in 1971 when Sparky Anderson managed the Nationals for the first time.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter, the American League's starting pitcher, isn't worried about having to swing a bat in this non-designated hitter game. "The pitchers in Oakland have been taking batting practice all season. It's the only thing we've got to look forward to except running."

There are seven ex-National League players on the American League All-Star squad and only two ex-American Leaguers on the NL team. All three Kansas City representatives, John Mayberry, Amos Otis and Cookie Rojas, are ex-NL players, testifying to the trading acumen of Royals' General Manager Cedric Tallis.

Since NL pitchers have been hitting all season and AL pitchers have not, Rick Wise, the Nationals' starter, was asked his batting average.

"I wish you hadn't asked," said Wise, who has always been a fairly good hitter. "It's about .160. They're pitching me tough."

Anderson bemoaned the loss of Cincinnati shortstop Dave Concepcion, who broke his left leg Sunday. "It's a real shame he can't be here," said the Reds' manager. "He certainly deserved it."

Hunter was not surprised that his manager, Dick Williams, who underwent an appendectomy only last Thursday, would be on the scene for the game. "He's the kind of manager who wants to be there all the time," said the A's righthander.

"I wouldn't be surprised if he called the shots over the telephone last weekend wien (Coach Irv) Noren managed the team."

Hank Aaron, elected to the starting team at first base, a position he has not played this year, won't spend more than three innings in the infield. "I'll talk to Henry," said Anderson. "If he stays in the game, he'll probably go to the outfield.

The National League leads the series 24-18 with one tie. At one point, the Americans led 12-4. Since then, however, the NL has won 20 of 26 games including 13 of the last 15 and nine of the last 10.

Hunter's two previous All-Star appearances have been less than successful. He surrendered Tony Perez' game-winning 15th inning homer in 1967 and got only one batter out in the 1970 game.

Shutout highlights

Flower Basket was dropped from American Little League Tourney pay Monday night as Righter's Little pitched an 11-0 hutout over them. Sealtest was the second winner of the night in first round action of the tournament with a 12-6 victory over Ziegenhorn.

Righter was in top form for the game as both pitching and hitting held up. Scoring moved consistently through the innings for Righter as was the opposite for Flower Basket. Flower Basket could not hit against Righter's tough little right- hander, Little, and faltered, to drop from the tourney. Lambert carried the strong bat for Righter as he lugged a homer along with a double. May added a doube also for his team. Noel was the losing pitcher.

Sealtest ha built up a 6-0 lead over Ziegenhorn before they were ble to get on the scoreboard. Ziegenhorn continued to trail and could not come around to reach Sealtest. An additional four runs in the third for Sealtest gave them ne insurance for the win. The only extra base hit of the ame was from Ziegenhorn's Mormon who hit a double. Anderson was the winning and Motton the losing pitcher.

Lincoln Continental
4 DOOR SEDAN

We always believed ours were the finest cars built in America. Until last year you had only our word for it. Then, in a ride and handling test of '72's, our Continentals won out over the other luxury car. We now believe our 1973 Continentals are even better, superb in luxury and handling, in the quiet of their ride.

Continental Mark IV

The 1973 Continental Mark IV. Quite simply, the most beautiful automobile in America. Perhaps because it is the only one that successfully blends both classic and contemporary styling.

Crash yields 1 survivor

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Officials of Pan American World Airways said today the search would go on for those missing after one of its jetliners crashed in the Pacific but all but one of the 79 persons on board were presumed dead.

The airline said the dead included 36 Americans. Twelve bodies have been recovered.

The lone survivor was James Campbell of Madawaska, Ont. The Papeete hospital said he was in satisfactory condition with contusions.

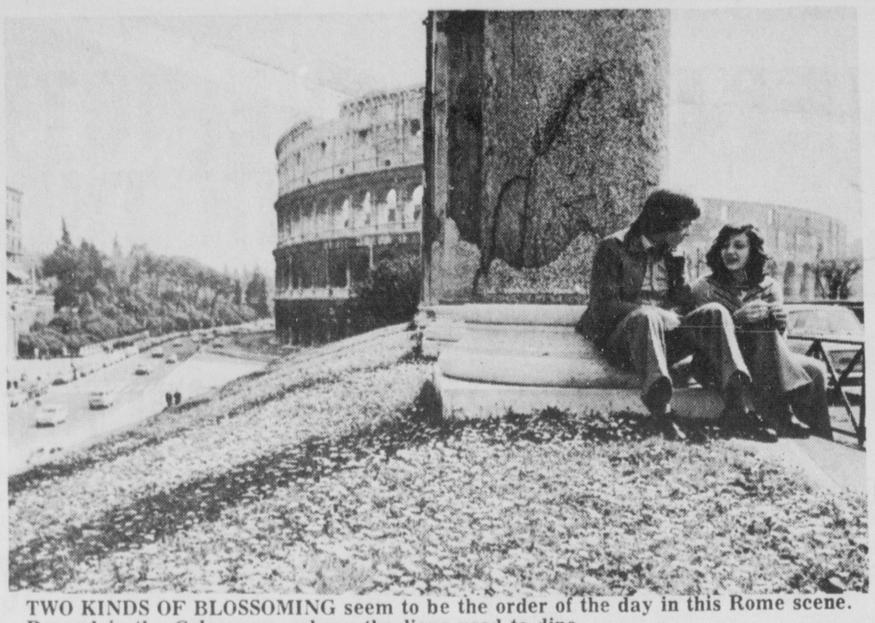

The airline said that, among the 69 passengers, were 28 Americans who boarded the flight in Tahiti and four who boarded in New Zealand. Four of the 10 crew members also were Americans.

One witness to Sunday night's crash said the plane turned to the left as soon as it took off and then started going down.

Pan Am denied suggestions that a defective windshield in the cockpit might have contributed to the crash. It said a side panel window had been inspected for a defect in Papeete but it was approved for flight and "could in no way be involved in the accident."

Officials said the plane climbed to about 300 feet before plunging into the sea 90 seconds after taking off for Los Angeles. It had come from Auckland, New Zealand.

"There was no radio communication from the pilot following takeoff," Pan Am said.

Debate scheduled for anti-impoundment bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's impoundment of funds, declared unconstitutional in connection with a housing program by a federal court, faced a new test today in Congress.

The House has scheduled debate on a bill that would give Congress the power to override any presidential impoundment by a simple resolution passed by either chamber.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Richey on Monday ruled that Nixon acted illegally in January by freezing funds for federal subsidized housing. The order said Nixon overstepped his executive powers in a matter ordained by Congress.

It was the latest in a series of court rulings denying the constitutionality of Nixon's withholding of funds approved by Congress.

Depending on the source, estimates of the amount Nixon has impounded ranged from $8.7 billion to $18 billion.

The bill before the House would allow either house of Congress to void a presidential impoundment by passing a resolution within 60 days of the action.

It faces a probable veto if enacted, but the House Democratic Steering Committee is pushing for favorable votes.

The Senate already has passed its own version of anti-impoundment legislation, a bill authod by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr.,D-N.C. that would automaticly terminate an impoundent unless both chambers aged to it within 60 days.

Richey's order voids the Nixon administration's 18-month moratorium on federal subsies for low-cost housing — a freeze that provoked crie from builders who claimed itwould cost the economy more han $10 billion.

Funds fo the housing programs halted by Nixon already hac bee approved by Congress, saic the court, incuding some $31,040 that the Departmen of Housing and Urban Development had not used.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gail Preuss of Shawnee, Okla., are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Gail Louise, to Charles Judson Berthe, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Berthe of Jessup, Ga., formerly of Sikeston. August 15th is the date chosen for the wedding.

Opry installs 63rd member

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Grand Ole Opry installed its 63rd member Saturday: Jeanne Pruett, a former Texas housewife who rose to country music stardom with her hit record, "Satin Sheets."

"I knew absolutely nothing about it," she said. "I later found out my friends had been planning this surprise for about two weeks."

Mrs. Pruett tearfully accepted a dozen red roses from singers Porter Waggoner and Dolly Parton as she went onstage to perform at the Opry.

She has been writing and performing music in Nashville about 10 years.

SOMETHING TO YODEL ABOUT

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — A rarity in the United States is a beautiful Swiss girl who can yodel.

A national search is being held for beauties of Swiss descent by producers of a Swiss beverage, Rivella. The firm wants girls to make yodeling appearances in connection with the introduction of the product in this country.

What's the law?

The case of the prolific wife

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Elmer's marriage to Mary Loo became a howling success only after the baby was born. All night long the baby screamed blue murder. And if that weren't nerve racking enough, Mary Loo had a child each of the first four years they were married and they all cried in quartet.

The payoff came, however, during the fifth year of their marriage when Mary Loo announced that she was going to have still another child.

Badly shaken by the news, Elmer staggered out of the house to the nearest saloon where he proceeded to hang one on. And when he ultimately sobered up, he packed his bags and left home. Mary Loo, in turn, sued him for a divorce on the grounds of abandonment.

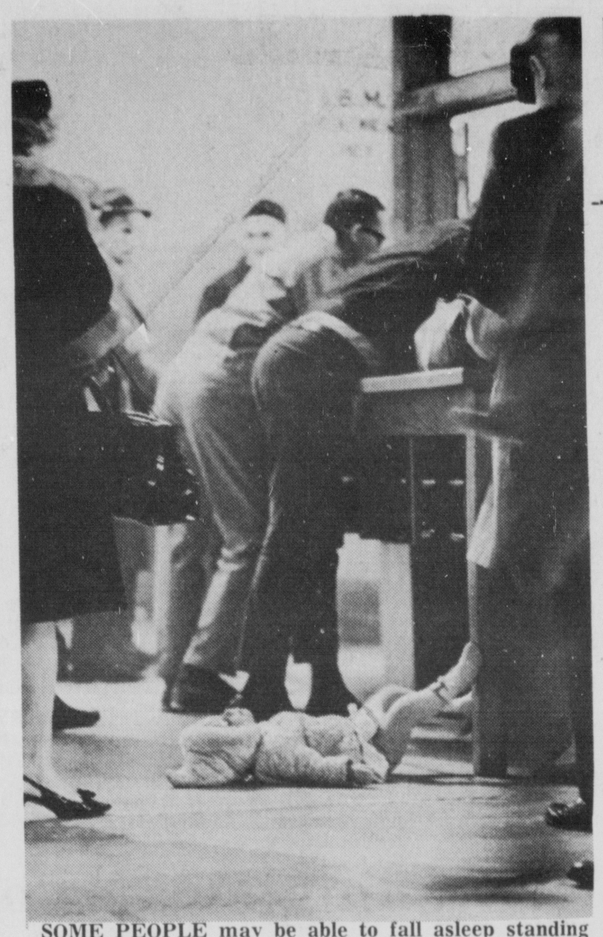

"He refuses to come home," Mary Loo tearfully complained to the judge. "In fact, he won't even talk to me."

"Talk to her?" repeated Elmer. "Why I'm even afraid to look at her. All you got to do is look at her and she gets pregnant. Consequently, my leaving wasn't abandonment. Abandonment is when a husband leaves a wife without good cause and, obviously, I had good cause. At the rate Mary Loo bore children, it just wasn't safe to live with her."

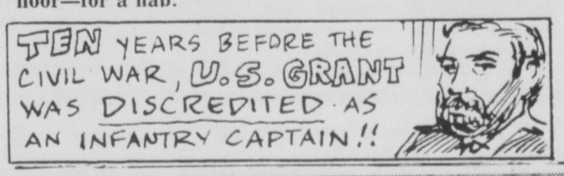

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant the prolific Mary Loo a divorce on the grounds of abandonment?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that if a woman bears children too fast, the husband is as much to blame as she is.

Prison escapee captured

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — An inmate of the Kansas State Prison in Lansing was captured at a downtown intersection here Monday about seven hours after he kidnaped a prison guard at knife point.

Sylvester Hazelwood, 29, was arrested about a mile from where he had tied up the guard and abandoned the prison car shortly after its two rear tires blew out.

Police said the guard, John Cooling, 25, was "shaken up but O.K." after he freed himself from two belts that bound his hands and legs and radioed the Johnson County, Mo., sheriff's department.

Hazelwood was spotted by a Warrensburg policeman who heard Cooling's call for help.

Acting Warden Robert Atkins said Cooling had taken Hazelwood to the women's detention facility where the inmate often assisted in taking official photographs of new inmates. Hazelwood, who is serving two 15-year sentences for burglary and larceny in 1970 near Salina, was described as a "good photographer."

Atkins said the two left about 1 p.m. and prison officials became concerned when Cooling did not respond to radio calls about 3 p.m.

Atkins said Hazelwood is a "rambling type of person" who had wandered around the metropolitan area three days after an earlier escape.

Soybean prices may average $4.11 bushel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soybean prices at the farm during the crop year beginning Sept. 1 could average about $4.11 per bushel if projected production and export orders are realized, an Agriculture Department economist says.

The estimate was made by Jimmy L. Matthews of the Economic Research Service in the July issue of the agency's "Fats and Oils Situation" publication.

For the 1972-73 season, soybean growers are expected to receive a record $4.25 per bushel, compared with $3.03 in 1971-72, Matthews said. The previous high of $3.33 was in 1947-48, he said.

Matthews uses several economic models to show various price possibilities for the 1973 soybean crop. They ranged from a farm price average of $3 per bushel to a high of $4.50 depending on the supply and demand situation.

Matthews also speculated that 1973-74 soybean prices could average "at least as high" as the expected $4.25 for 1972-73.

Matthews uses a crop production of 1.588 billion bushels in projecting a farm price average of $4.11 per bushel in the coming crop year. The crop forecast was based on the department's July 1 reports on acreage and trends in the industry.

The first official USDA estimate of 1973 soybean production, based on field inspections, will be announced Aug. 9.

Matthews contends that the farm price could average $4.50 per bushel if the Soviet Union buys 2.5 million metric tons (about 92 million bushels) from a short 1973 crop of 1,462 billion bushels, and the fishmeal supply from Peru remains scant.

"An additional 10 per cent depreciation of the dollar on top of these factors could push soybean farm prices to near the $5 per bushel level," Matthews adds.

However, Matthews warns that relatively low soybean prices at the farm, about $3 per bushel, could result next season if a bumper crop is produced next fall, Russia does not buy any beans, Brazil boosts soybean exports sharply and Peruvian fishmeal makes a comeback.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department reminder: July 25-31 is National Farm Safety Week, and the theme is "Falls Hurt."

A survey shows that of 3,800 farm accidents over a five month period, nearly one-third resulted from falls, says USDA.

Evening classes offered

POPLAR BLUFF — Eleven courses are being offered in the evening program by Three Rivers Community College Academic Division for the fall semester this year.

The classes will meet from 6:30 to 9:30 either one or two nights a week, Monday through Thursday.

Registration for the evening program begins at 6:30 p.m. Aug. 21. The first classes will meet at 6:30 p.m. Aug. 27.

The maintenance fee for part- time students is $8 per credit hour for those living in the four-county (Butler, Carter, Ripley and Wayne) Three Rivers Junior College District. Fees for Missourians living outside the district are $15 per credit hour. For students from outside the state the fees are $30 per credit hour.

Part- time students taking fewer than seven hours for credit are not required to pay an activity fee. They are charged for textbook rentals, any laboratory fees involved in their courses, and must make a $7 textbook deposit which is refundable at the end of the semester if the books are returned in good condition.

Courses offered in the evening program are Elementary Accounting I, Elementary Spanish I, Physical Science, General Sociology, Introduction to Theater, Introduction to Art, Music Appreciation, Economics I, Mathematics for Elementary Teachers, General Physchology I, and English Composition I.

Argentina winter worst in decades

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — It's winter in Argentina, and it's one of the worst in decades.

Heavy snows blanket Patagonia, the 1,000-mile-long southern area that ends at Cape Horn. In the north, rains are sending rivers over their banks. Snow has fallen within 100 miles of Buenos Aires for the first time in years, and temperatures in the capital district have dipped to 36 degrees.

Nearly a million sheep are believed to have perished in Patagonia, a loss of $10 to $15 per head. Newspaper reports say that 50,000 to 80,000 cattle may have drowned in waters flooding the rich pampas of Buenos Aires Province.

Housewives bundled up against near freezing weather formed lines in poor districts of Buenos Aires, carrying pails to collect heating kerosene from tank trucks sent out by the state petroleum company.

Nearly five million acres of pasture and farmland in Buenos Aires Province have been under water. Agricultural experts said it would take some of the waterlogged land several years to be productive again.

National and provincial highways were cut either by floods or snowdrifts. Emergency auto caravans were formed by skiers leaving the mountain resort of Bariloche.

Human loss of life has been low in the cold wave that gripped most of the country the past two weeks, but thousands of persons had to flee flooded homes.

Improving weather over the weekend permitted thousands of families to return to their homes.

The severe livestock losses could be a setback to the economy, which was just beginning to recover after several disastrous years of bad harvests and a drop in beef exports.

Inflation battle raging

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the Federal Reserve Board says Americans will pay more for home mortgages and find it tougher to get other credit because of the battle against inflation.

And, rising food prices are prompting some Americans to stock up as a hedge against even higher costs.

Reserve Board member Andrew F. Brimmer said Monday the agency plans to keep a tight money policy "as long as required."

"I know that the picture ... is far from comforting. These consequences are inherent in the use of a restrictive monetary policy as a leading instrument in the fight against inflation," Brimmer told a meeting of the Michigan Savings and Loan League at Mackinac Island, Mich.

The board's monetary actions have included raising bank reserve requirements, and raising the discount rate on money borrowed from federal reserve banks by commercial banks to 7 per cent, the highest rate since the 1920s, he said.

As a result of these actions and high demand for loans, the bank prime interest rate on loans has steadily increased this year to 8½ per cent.

The effect on consumers, Brimmer said, is higher interest rates, including on home mortgages, and a shortage of credit. He indicated that interest rates will keep rising for at least the immediate future.

While recent economic indicators suggest the pace of economic activity is slowing, credit demands appear likely to remain quite heavy for some time, Brimmer said.

Meanwhile, an Associated Press survey of supermarkets shows customers are stocking up on food in the face of sharply rising prices. Many stores have taken advantage of the lifting of the price freeze to mark up many food items, particularly pork, poultry and eggs, the survey showed.

The Phase 4 program announced last week allows food processors and retailers to pass on to the consumer cost increases in raw agricultural products. Beef prices remain frozen until Sept. 12.

Administration officials have said there will be a sharp rise in food prices temporarily, but they predicted that the grocery bills will level off as supplies increase.

And the Cost of Living Council said it has granted an exemption from the price freeze for the fall line of clothing.

Showdown coming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The executive and legislative branches of government apparently are headed for a constitutional showdown that never before has been decided in U.S. history.

The issue is whether a President must obey a subpoena from Congress or a prosecutor. It was raised when President Nixon refused Monday to turn over to Watergate investigators tape recordings of meetings between himself and former presidential aides implicated in the scandal.

Nixon was subpoenaed — twice by the Senate Watergate committee and once by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox — making him one of only a few presidents to have been served subpoenas.

None of the previous cases reached the Supreme Court. Now the high court may become not only the ultimate referee but perhaps an equal participant in a three-way clash between the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government.

The crux of the legal issue involves the doctrine of the Constitution that the three branches remain separate.

President Thomas Jefferson faced the issue in 1807 when Chief Justice John Marshall was sitting as the circuit judge in Aaron Burr's treason trial. Marshall subpoenaed Jefferson but stipulated that Jefferson need only furnish certain papers.

Jefferson produced the documents, but rejected the notion of a personal appearance as a judicial whim.

Watergate prosecutor Cox has gone back even further to support his demand on the presidency. He cited Marshall's landmark decision of 1803 in the Marbury vs. Madison case, in which the Supreme Court held that it could determine the constitutionality of acts of Congress.

Cox said the decision proved "ours is a system of government in which no man is above the law."

Nixon supporters argue the same case did not require the attorney general to disclose certain information he felt a constitutional obligation to shield.

Despite the 19th century cases, constitutional lawyers agree there is little legal precedent for such a confrontation.

In a decision last year, the Supreme Court denied newsmen any privilege to protect disclosure of confidential sources before grand juries.

The court cited a 1950 ruling which said that "every person within the jurisdiction of the government is bound" to testify when summoned before grand juries.

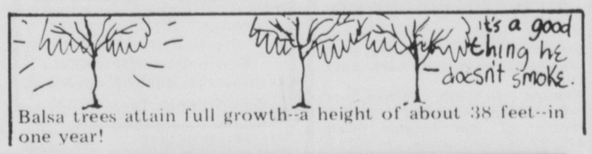

Though not referring directly to presidents, that ruling noted that there are exceptions when an individual interest of confidentiality outweighs the public interest of disclosure.

Specialists in constitutional law differ about the possibilities. Prof. Henry Monohan of Boston University said he believes the courts might take a broad view of executive privilege and hold that the President is protected from disclosure of information relating to a single aspect of his duties because it is impossible to cull one role from many roles.

But Yale Prof. Thomas I. Emerson said Nixon "has no legal right to claim executive privilege or separation of powers when his papers or, in this case, his tapes, might reveal a criminal act."

Wheat issue unsettled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four months of investigations and two days of public hearings have failed to settle whether the Agriculture Department knew of the extent of the big Soviet wheat purchase before the deal was made.

The issue is the central one in the probe by the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, which planned a third day of hearings today.

The General Accounting Office, which conducted its own probe of the 1972 sale, concluded that the Agriculture Department had information that would have led the government to believe the Soviets would need large amounts of wheat.

Joesph R. Ferri, assistant GAO director, testified Monday that U.S. attaches in Moscow, Canada and Australia had made clear that in early 1972 the United States had emerged as a dominant supplier of wheat to the world.

"The information, however, was not effectively used or disseminated," Ferri said.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and Carroll Brunthaver, assistant secretary, said the department had no solid information that the Soviet Union would need large amounts of wheat until after the big sale was announced July 11, 1972.

Brunthaver said he could not recall a July 3, 1972, meeting with Bernard Steinweg of Continental Grain Co. Steinweg said he told Brunthaver then "the specific amounts of wheat they wished to purchase from us ..."

That specific amount from Continental was 4.5 million tons.

The total 1972 grain sale to the Soviet Union was the largest in history.

Before the wheat sale became known publicly, farmers were selling wheat for $1.60 per bushel. After the sale was disclosed, the price shot up to $3 a bushel.

Baron Friedrich Wilhelm von Steuben was a Prussian officer who became inspector general of the American Continental army. Baron von Steuben disciplined and organized the colonial troops into an effective fighting force during the bitter winter at Valley Forge in 1777, when their morale was at its lowest, The World Almanac recalls.

More repairs may await second crew

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — After they saved their damaged space station, the Skylab 1 astronauts were called the "fix anything guys." More repair work may await the Skylab 2 crew when it reaches the orbiting lab.

Practicing one of the potential fix-it tasks was the main training item planned today as Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma neared Saturday's launch date for their marathon 59-day mission.

They scheduled a lengthy session with an electronic package called a "gyro six-pack." It might have to be used to replace some troublesome rate gyroscope processors (RGPs) on the space station.

Skylab uses nine RGPs, three in each axis—roll, pitch and yaw. They sense motion and provide that information to a computer which furnishes signals to control the position of the 85-ton space station. The three RGPs in each axis are redundant; only one is essential for performance.

One RGP has been turned off because it malfunctioned, and five others have become overheated to various degrees but still are operative as the lab orbits 270 miles high.

Bean, Garriott and Lousma are carrying the six-pack along in case they need replacements, a job that would require a two-man space walk. Officials said a change probably would not be made unless all three gyros were lost in one axis.

The Skylab 2 astronauts also will take along in their Apollo ferry ship a replacement parasol sunshade and a backup heat exchanger that might have to be used in case of problems.

The $2.6 billion Skylab project almost was lost when the station was launched unmanned May 14. A shield ripped away during liftoff, exposing the laboratory to the sun's heat. It also tore away one of two power-producing solar panels and jammed the other against the side, creating a serious electrical shortage.

The launch of Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz was postponed 10 days while experts developed a makeshift sunshade. The astronauts erected it by pushing it through a laboratory porthole and opening it like an umbrella.

Among other repair jobs, they freed the jammed solar panel during a difficult space walk, nearly doubling electrical power.

Bean, Garriott and Lousma will conclude their training Wednesday at the Johnson Space Center near Houston. They'll fly to Cape Kennedy Thursday to prepare for their launching at 7:10 a.m. EDT Saturday.

Shoppers stocking up before boost

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A Tennessee man bought 34 pounds of bacon in three days. A Seattle, Wash., shopper piled up a grocery bill of $173.75 in one stop. And a Dallas supermarket posted a sign: "Please, three-pound limit on ground beef."

The start of a new week brought a surge of post-freeze price boosts Monday and a corresponding crowd of shoppers trying to stock up before the increases.

An Associated Press survey showed pork, poultry and eggs particularly were affected by the lifting of the ceiling on food prices. President Nixon announced last Wednesday that, as part of the Phase 4 economic program, retailers and processors could pass on higher costs of agricultural products. Beef prices remain frozen until Sept. 12.

Al Lieffort, the meat manager of a Neb's market in Phoenix, Ariz., said on Monday that cut-up fryers went up three cents a pound to 67 cents and eggs went up 8 to 10 cents a dozen.

Lieffort said he had an "unbelievable" run on fresh meat. "I don't have a piece of meat left in the cooler to cut," he said. "All I have is that cut up and in the showcase."

The president of A. J. Bayless Markets in Phoenix, Roger Hegel, said bacon delivered to his stores from wholesalers Monday cost him 23 cents more a pound — $1.17 instead of 94 cents.

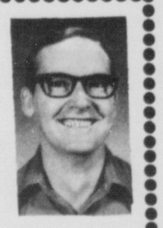

Floyd Orman of Memphis, Tenn., the man who bought the 34 pounds of bacon, said that in one stop he just managed to beat a price hike. "Just as I picked up this bacon for $1.19 a pound, they were changing the price to $1.39," he said.

Pete Bracchi, the store manager of the Penn Fruit Co. in Philadelphia, said: "I notice that the largest price increases are in the deli items—pork roll, bacon, things like that. There are no shortages as of yet, but I foresee some."

The meat manager of a Dallas supermarket said he posted a sign limiting the sale of ground beef because "meat sales have at least tripled in volume and ... otherwise one customer would buy it all."

A Bismarck, N.D., housewife said, however, that she wasn't stocking up.

Mini-Milo 54BR

SHORT, FAST GROWING, PRODUCTIVE

Fast maturing Mini-Milo 54BR blooms 5 to 10 days earlier than most early varieties. It heads out in 4 to 6 weeks. The short plants thrive in narrow row spacing and the bird resistant feature protects your crop till harvest. Excellent for emergency or double cropping situations. Perfect cash crop and makes a high quality feeding ration.

Malden Council hires driver

MALDEN-- The City Council Monday night hired Oliver Corlew as firetruck driver in the Malden Industrial Park.

The council also decided to move the firetruck to from the main station to the industrial park.

A discussion regarding the recreation park was held and it was decided the park committee would give the council a monthly report on income and disbursements.

Jack Baker, president of Bee- Cee Manufacturing Co. in the industrial park requested a road be built from the plant to the main thoroughfare. Mayor G. H. Anderson asked the street committee to meet with the airport committee and bring a recommendation to the next couuncil meeting.

The council approved an ordinance for repairs and improvements on certain city streets.

Chief of Police Woody McMillian discussed weeds that need cutting in the city. Mayor Anderson asked McMilian to notify owners of such property and request that the weeds be cut.

President to take 'appropriate action'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today President Nixon will take "appropriate action" by Thursday to challenge three subpoenas seeking access to presidential tape recordings and documents by Watergate investigators.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren would not hint at the specific steps Nixon might take. He said they would be consistent with his refusal Monday to provide tapes and documents to the Senate Watergate committee and to special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Asked at a news briefing how the White House would respond to the subpoenas, Warren said the office of the presidential counsel was studying the "very complex legal situation involved" and that "after such study will take appropriate action ... within the time specified in the subpoenas."

He reported that all three documents call for a response by Thursday.

In response to a question, Warren said that Nixon of course would make the final decision on actions to be taken.

Newsmen tried to glean from Warren some hint as to the course Nixon will adopt.

"I can't speculate for you what appropriate action might be," he replied.

He promised newsmen would be furnished detailed information once action is taken.

Asked if Nixon might simply ignore the subpoenas, Warren said he did not want to get into a legal discussion about available options.

A newsman asked if Nixon would produce the materials sought by investigators should the courts eventually order him to do so. Warren at first said he was "not able to get into a hypothetical discussion."

Later, however, he said, "there's no question that he would abide by court rulings ... The President abides by the law."

lay at the side of a busy thoroughfare and armed federal and local police cordoned off the area.

Ozark said the plane, Flight 809, originated in Nashville Monday afternoon and was carrying 41 passengers and a crew of three. The dead were taken first to three area hospitals then to the morgue at St. Louis County Hospital in Clayton.

The crash was the first involving a casualty for the airline, which resumed flights July 5 after a 71-day strike by mechanics.

An FAA spokesman said the control tower at the airport lost sight of the aircraft on radar about a mile from the airport as it descended to an altitude of about 600 feet.

A witness to the crash, Debbie Schwab, said she heard a "boom like lightning followed by more booms." Mrs. Schwab said her husband ran from their home and saw a ball of flame that "lit up the sky."

A brief fire followed the impact as the plane disintegrated, knocking down trees and strewing power lines in its path. The fire was quickly extinguished.

Two of the victims were not removed from ths wreckage until nearly four hours after the crash, which occurred at 6:45 p.m., EDT.

Ozark officials said today that six of the 41 passengers boarded the plane at Clarksville, nine at Paducah, eight at Cape Girardeau and 18 at Marion.

Six of the eight injured passengers were listed in critical condition at four St. Louis area hospitals.

Nicky Cordin, 12, of the Detroit area, was listed in critical condition at Barnes Hospital, although her sister, Tanzi, 7, was listed as fair at Cardinal Glennon Childrens' Hospital in St. Louis County.

A 30-year-old Chicago man, Stewart Sikevitz, was listed in good condition at another county hospital.

The pilot, Arvid L. Linke, 37, of St. Louis, and his flight officer, Michael Williams, 28, also of St. Louis, were both in critical condition at separate hospitals. Barbara Robertson, 39, of Crestwood, Mo., was also in critical condition.

Hospital officials identified the other two victims as Pfc. Robert Whitney of Bremerton, Wash., and James Freeman, 39, of Arlington, Tex. Both of them were also listed as critical.
